COMMENT OF THE DAY

No Surprises

THE result of the Urban Council by-election could hardly be described as surprising. Mr. Brook Bernacchi (Reform) has a large personal following and a long record as a politician in this Colony. Mr. Allport is a virtual newcomer to this field but as he is one who has shown a keen interest in the affairs of the community it is to be hoped he is not discouraged by the outcome.

It is interesting, however, to compare Wednesday's voting with the full election figures in March wherein the Civic Association candidates polled heavily. Indeed Mr. Li Yu-hor topped the poll on that occasion with 4,569 votes—600 votes more than Mr. Bernacchi—and two other Civic candidates were elected with more than 3,500 votes each. Mr. Allport on that occasion polled 2,270 votes against only 1,488 votes yesterday, and Mr. Bernacchi's 2,590.

It is therefore difficult to decide how much of yesterday's voting in favour of Mr. Bernacchi was due to his personal following or to better mobilisation of party supporters. It would appear both factors played some part in his victory and that the Civic Association's "regular" following in the substantial though, on the last election results, its policies appear to be more appealing.

THE only other conclusion possible is that the apathetic attitude of the electorate—which is not surprising in view of the proximity of the two elections—was less damaging to Mr. Bernacchi than to his opponent. If there is any conclusion for the Civic Association to draw from this it may be that it has a less highly developed political machine than the Reform Club—or perhaps less contact with its supporters than its rivals have.

That only 4,102 voters turned out—the electoral roll is 19,305—is disappointing but not surprising. The figure roughly conforms with the low totals recorded at other elections and allowance must be made for the fact that Wednesday's contest was a by-election.

Hongkong it seems will need a big political issue to awaken the public to its civic responsibilities—and under present circumstances and the limited scope available to elected members in the Urban Council this does not seem likely.

Ensures a smooth, vibrationless flight. It cruises between twenty and thirty thousand feet without the passengers realising whether it is ascending or descending.

STASSEN TRIES PRIVATE DEAL

Western Allies Protest Over Action

By DEREK MARKS

London, June 13.

A PRIVATE deal with Russia has been tried by Mr. Harold Stassen, the United States representative at the disarmament talks here.

This is the conviction of London diplomats after a new dispute between America and her Western allies.

Speaking in Finland today, Russia's Mr. Khrushchev said the Soviet Union would agree to inspection posts being set up in her territory, the United States, Britain and other countries if this would aid agreement on banning nuclear tests.

The chief fear in London is that the row caused by Mr. Stassen may have weakened the Western powers' negotiating authority.

China Mail special correspondent John Earle says the four Western members of the UN Subcommittee plan to meet privately tomorrow before the official session in the afternoon.

The Western meeting would aim at achieving a united attitude on the latest United States disarmament proposals, which America's Western allies have been considering for a fortnight but have so far failed to approve.

THREE FEATURES

Mr. Stassen's proposals have not been disclosed, but according to unconfirmed reports they contain the following features of a partial disarmament agreement.

- ★ 1. An immediate temporary ban on nuclear tests, linked to a "cut off date" after which fissile material production for military purposes would cease.
- ★ 2. A 10 to 15 per cent cut in conventional arms and military expenditure.

★ 3. "Open skies" aerial inspection of zones in the Arctic and Europe, assuming agreement of countries to be overflown.

Though West Germany has been reported as reluctant to agree to a European inspection zone before German reunification, other Western European allies were understood to have no objection to the idea of such a zone.

London Bus Mows Down Queue

London, June 13.

SIX people were killed and 12 injured, one seriously, when a double-decker bus mounted the pavement and hit a queue in London's busy Oxford Street today.

The bus swerved off the road at the height of the afternoon shopping rush. The driver said later that he had a blackout.

Four of those killed were men and two were women. One of the injured was in a critical condition but 11 others were released from hospital after treatment.

A witness said the bus suddenly mounted the curb and struck the wall of a bank, carrying several of the victims along underneath it.—Reuter.

POLL GOING AGAINST PREMIER

London, June 13.

The British public's views on Mr. Harold Macmillan as Prime Minister are hardening. The number of "don't knows" has dropped from 18 to 13 per cent, according to the latest Daily Express poll of public opinion.

And most of the newly made up minds have gone against Mr. Macmillan. But public support for the Tories remains fairly steady.

Fifty-five per cent said they were satisfied and 32 per cent were dissatisfied in the current poll. This compares to 64 and a half per cent and 45 per cent respectively in last month's poll.

Asked if they were satisfied or not with Government's conduct of affairs in the current poll, 45 per cent said they were and 40 per cent said they were not. This compares to 48 and a half per cent and 45 per cent respectively in last month's poll.

Asked which party they would vote for if a general election were held immediately, 44 and a half per cent said they would vote Socialist.

These figures are unchanged since the last poll. — London Express Service.

In Saturday's Mail

Tomorrow the China Mail introduces two new Saturday features.

Michael Innes, the first of six authors to write for the China Mail Crime Club, starts the series with a complete short story—BLACKMAIL.

Alexander Thomson delves into the art of making money and tells how those who have it made it. For instance Vincent Johnson, the sleight of hand expert, now he is running his 14th Rolls-Royce.

Among the other features will be:

- ★ Robert Koch, the 'biological detective'.
- ★ A Friendly Owl by Thurlow Craig.
- ★ The Horrors of Lidice.
- ★ Men who see in the dark by Dominic Jones.

And, of course, Giles, Friel, Logan Gourlay, Peter Buchan, and Thomas Wiseman will all be there for your weekend reading.

South Africa Increasing Duty On Hongkong Products

Capetown, June 13.

The South African Finance Minister, Mr. Rom Naude, moving the second reading of the Customs Duty Amendment Bill in the Assembly today said the Bill introduced a form of customs duty which would give South African manufacturers of certain goods bigger protection against better quality articles from Western countries.

The Minister said that in terms of various international agreements South Africa could not impose discriminatory duties on imports from Hongkong which included such articles as socks, buttons, wood screws, raincoats, and chandeliers.

To provide adequate protection for local manufacturers the high ad valorem duty that would have to be imposed would make the importation of relevant articles from Western countries virtually impossible.

But importation of these articles from the West was in the interests not only of South Africa but also the industries concerned.

Replace Duty

Mr. Naude said it had therefore been decided to replace the duty based on the value of certain articles imported by a duty based on the article itself.

For example, it was intended to levy a duty of nine shillings per garment in the case of raincoats.

In the case of raincoats imported from Hongkong this duty would be equivalent to 87 per cent ad valorem but only 17 per cent ad valorem on imports from Britain.—Reuter.

QUEEN TAKES BIRTHDAY SALUTE

London, June 13.

Thousands of sightseeing tourists thronged the fringes of Horse Guards Parade near Buckingham Palace here today to watch Queen Elizabeth, in scarlet tunic and tricorn hat, take the salute on horseback at the Trooping the Colour ceremony.

The centuries-old ceremony is now traditionally celebrated on the Sovereign's official birthday. The Queen, sitting side-saddle on her new mount, "Imp", rode down the wide avenue of The Mall from Buckingham Palace. Her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, and uncle, the Duke of Gloucester, rode behind her, wearing the uniforms of the Welsh Guards and the Scots Guards.

"IMP"—SHORT FOR "IMPERIAL"

This year the regimental colour of the First Battalion Irish Guards was trooped. Back at Buckingham Palace, the Queen and other members of the Royal Family watched from the balcony an RAF fly past.—Reuter.

Journalist Refused Passport

Washington, June 13.

The State Department passport division today provisionally refused to grant a passport renewal to William Worthly, reporter for the Baltimore Afro-American, who went to China last December.

The renewal was refused after the passport division heard testimony by Mr. Worthly, who defied a State Department ban on travel to China after Chinese authorities had invited American newsmen to visit the country.

The final decision is up to Mr. Roy C. Conner, head of the State Department's Division of Consular Affairs and Security.—France Press.

SOS—Crew About To Mutiny NAVY RUSHES TO RESCUE

Bahrein, June 13.

An armed boarding party from a Royal Naval frigate came to the rescue of a British tanker captain today after his Chinese crew threatened to mutiny.

The skipper of the 10,422-ton German Steiger sent out an SOS call and the 1,875-ton British frigate HMS Loch Alvie met the tanker at anchor near the entrance to the river Shatt el Arab in the Persian Gulf.

Sailors from the frigate, armed with rifles and pistols, rushed aboard the tanker and seized six Chinese who the captain said were the ringleaders of the mutiny plot.

The arrested men were taken ashore and turned over to the Iraqi police.

TOOK CONTROL

After the boarding party took control of the situation, the rest of the Chinese crew refused to handle the ship and also were put ashore.

A skeleton crew from the Loch Alvie were aboard the tanker and the ship moved off toward Mina al Ah-Adi under escort by the frigate.

The owners of the tanker are the Singapore Navigation Company.

The Loch Alvie is a 1,575-ton vessel and carries two four-inch, six 40 millimetre and nine Bofors guns.

She is part of the Persian Gulf Squadron and her captain is Commander W. I. Campbell.—United Press & Reuter.

GIRARD CASE

Washington, June 13. Chairman Thomas S. Gordon said today his House Foreign Affairs Committee will delay, if necessary final action on President Eisenhower's foreign aid programme to investigate the Girard case.—United Press.

14 Killed In Truck Crash

New York, June 13.

An Army truck carrying 25 men of the famous 101st Airborne Division on a training mission went out of control on a curve today and plunged 25 feet into a creek.

Major Louis Bercant of the Fort Campbell Public Information Office, Kentucky, said 14 men were killed and nine injured.

Officers said the truck was taking the men back to their base when it crashed through a guard rail into shallow Piney Ford Creek.

A light cargo helicopter had to be used to lift one end of the truck off the bodies.—United Press.

GEORGE FEELS STRONGER

Atlanta, June 13.
Former Sen. Walter F. George, President Eisenhower's special Nato Ambassador, battled a serious circulatory ailment today but doctors said they were "optimistic" about his chance of recovery.

George issued a statement from his bed that "I feel stronger this morning and had a comfortable night."

A physician attending George said the specific ailment that is being treated is hardening of the arteries that nourish the heart. A symptom of the disease was the presence of sharp pains in the chest. —United Press.

Risk Of War If Troop Clashes Go On In Tunis

Tunis, June 13.

The Tunisian Prime Minister, M. Habib Bourguiba, said in a broadcast to his people tonight that there was a risk war would break out between France and Tunisia if the recent series of clashes between their troops continued.

M. Bourguiba said: "If Tunisian authority and sovereignty continue to be flouted this will inevitably lead to a risk of a war, which the Tunisian people are ready to face if it is thrust upon them."

The refusal of the French Army to cease troop movements in Tunisia, said created a serious situation. The French Army was wholly responsible for the recent incidents on one of which a senior Tunisian Foreign Ministry official, M. Khemiss Hajer, was seriously hurt and six Tunisian national guardsmen killed, M. Bourguiba added.

He declared in his weekly radio address to the nation that "The refusal of the French military authorities to submit to the decision of the Tunisian government and to subordinate their movements to the agreement of the Tunisian authorities has created a serious situation."

PARIS COMMENT

At the beginning of the month Bourguiba forbade the 45,000 French troops stationed in this former French protectorate to move from place to place without Tunisian permission.

Authoritative sources in Paris tonight, commenting on the speech made in Tunis earlier today by Tunisian Premier, Habib Bourguiba, said the wish which he expressed for re-opening Franco-Tunisian negotiations fully conformed with the often expressed French viewpoint on the subject.

However, the same sources expressed surprise that the desire to renew negotiations should be accompanied, on the Tunisian side, by criticisms of the behaviour of the French.

Afro-Asian Group Move

New York, June 13.

The Afro-Asian Group in the United Nations today agreed to seek an international investigation of the Algerian situation.

Dr. Ben Abdou, the Moroccan Ambassador who is chairman of the 28-member group this month, would call on Mr. Dag Hammarskjold, the Secretary-General, to ask him to consult with the French on such a plan, informants said.

Dr. Ben Abdou told correspondents that the group unanimously agreed on "appropriate steps to air the question," but he declined to go into details about these.

He indicated wide endorsement of an appeal to Mr. Hammarskjold by the Algerian Nationalists for an investigation by the International Red Cross of the actions of both sides in the Algeria strife. —Reuter.

IKE TO MAKE MAJOR SPEECH

Washington, June 13.

President Eisenhower will make a major speech on June 24 at the Annual Conference of State Governors at Williamsburg, Virginia, the White House announced today.

The White House Press Secretary, Mr. James Hagerty, said the theme of the address would be disclosed later. —Reuter.

RHINE CROSSING

Nearly 500 tanks had been modified to carry the powerful are lamps. Several batteries of these tanks were used as ordinary searchlights to illuminate a stretch of the Rhine River during an Allied crossing in 1945.

The scheme was developed, but never used in battle, was to line up the light-carrying tanks about 60 yards apart and have them throw their dazzling beams simultaneously toward the enemy lines.

The Army found that the cones of darkness between the channels of light provided excellent concealment for advancing American soldiers and vehicles while the enemy would be dazzled and confused by the lights. —Reuter.

'CRUSOE' MYSTERY DEEPENS

JAPAN TO STAND WITH WEST

Tokyo, June 13. The Prime Minister, Mr. Nobusuke Kishi, said here today that he would tell President Eisenhower, during their forthcoming Washington talks, that Japan definitely stands in the Western camp and does not want to follow a neutralist or pro-Communist policy.

"The main purpose of my trip to Washington is to emphasize this policy of my government and the need for friendly relations between the people of Japan and the people of the United States," he said at a press conference.

The Premier said he would not take up the controversial Girmid case as a specific problem. But he indicated that he would talk with President Eisenhower and the US Secretary of State, Mr. John Foster Dulles, about possible revisions in the mutual security pact and the administrative agreement under which American troops are stationed in Japan.

FOUNDATION

"I hope my talks in the United States will lay the foundation for strengthening relations between Japan and the United States for the next ten years," he said.

Premier Kishi said Japan had not the intention of recognising Communist China.

"But when it comes to trade," he said, "we feel trade should be increased."

He said Japan had no intention of shipping strategic items to Communist China and had no intention of following Britain's lead in "going it alone" in China trade affairs.

He said Japan favoured elimination of the "China differential," but "I believe unity is important to the free world and any action on this important matter should be a majority decision. We will not follow England's course," United Press.

Graves Of Three Baby Girls Found On Castaway's Tiny Island

London, June 13.

The 19th century graves of three baby girls have been discovered on the lonely Pacific island of Malden, scene of Britain's hydrogen bomb tests, it was learned today.

Their tombstones, perfectly preserved, lay a few yards from the hut of Adam McCulloch, a voluntary castaway who went to the island in the early 1860's.

TROTSKY ASSASSIN LOSES APPEAL

Mexico City, June 13.

Jacques Mornard, the assassin of exiled Russian revolutionary leader, Leon Trotsky, has lost his last chance to obtain his release from a Mexican prison before 1960, when he will have served all of his 20-year sentence, it was learned today.

Jacques Mornard, or Frank Jackson or Ramon Mercader, no positive identification could ever be made — has attempted during the last three years to obtain release after serving two-thirds of his sentence.

REJECTED

The Mexican prison authorities refused to release him, a Mexican court yesterday rejected his appeal. The main fact against Mornard's release was that he entered Mexico illegally in 1940, several months before killing the former Soviet Communist for War.

The Mexican court said that the early release of convicts was aimed at permitting the authorities to note their moral adjustment, but that this was impossible in Mornard's case since he would be immediately expelled from the country for having entered with a false passport and under a false name. Moreover, the prison authorities considered that Mornard had not changed and that he was still a danger to society. — France-Press.

No trace has been found of McCulloch's grave or skeleton. There also appeared to be no record of any women having lived on the island.

Malden, a coral atoll surrounded by treacherous reefs, is 400 miles south of Christmas Island. Five miles long and four and a half miles wide, it contains a large salt lagoon cut off from the sea.

The Find

The find was made by a party of Royal engineers after they made a difficult landing on the island last year from a heavily laden British army vessel.

In the hut, they found the diaries of Adam McCulloch stacked in a corner. These showed that he volunteered to go to the island after it was turned into a small coral mining post by a Mr Benjamin Nicholson, a British subject with business connections in Australia.

With a small number of South Sea Islanders, McCulloch set up a small coral-calcining plant. The output was collected each year by ship.

In a small graveyard were three tombstones, bearing only Christian names. One of the girls, according to the quite legible inscription on the stone, had apparently been buried in the pounding surf of the coral reef.

100 Years

The engineers found that the hut, although apparently uninhabited for nearly 100 years, showed signs of its last occupant making a hurried and unexpected departure.

Everything in the room was neatly stacked away on shelves; cutlery and cups lay on the table.

The bedrooms in the wooden hut, which in layout resembled a large modern bungalow, were left neat and tidy except for thick layers of dust.

Entries in McCulloch's diary show that he paid his small band of employees £2 a week, but regularly imposed fines for any slight misdemeanour.

They included one shilling for missing church services and varying fines for fighting and other types of "loose behaviour."

Long Snouts

The "pig" found on the island and presumably taken there by McCulloch had extremely long snouts.

The only way the animals could get water was by burrowing their noses into the parched soil.

The wreck of a Japanese fishing trawler was found on the beach. It is believed to have been damaged by a torpedo during the last war and to have drifted on to the island's reefs.

After spending several months on the island, the Japanese left.

They may have managed to make one of McCulloch's old outrigger canoes seaworthy.

Destroyed

The hut and all the evidence of McCulloch's stay on Malden Island had to be destroyed by the Royal engineers to make way for the military preparations for "Operation Grapple" — the explosion of Britain's first hydrogen bomb last month.

His diaries and other records will return to Britain when the operation is completed later this year.

Experts will then try to solve the mystery of this volunteer "Robinson Crusoe" and his strange land. — China Mail Special.

IKE AND DULLES NOT IN STEP

— The Scotsman

Edinburgh, June 13.

The Scotsman said today that President Eisenhower did not seem to be in step with Mr John Foster Dulles, American State Secretary, on the question of relaxing embargoes on trade with Communist China.

This independent newspaper said in a leading article: "Britain's refusal to continue the special restrictions on trade with China, ever and above those applicable to Russia is forcing on the United States antagonisms reappraisal of her policy which Mr Dulles is not at all inclined to make."

"The trouble is that American policy is like a house built on sand. It is a pure illusion that Chiang Kai-shek (Nationalist Chinese leader) is a leader who could now rally China to his banner; and in fact the United States has let it be known that the idea is not to support any crazy scheme for an invasion of the Mainland."

STRANGE

"Even President Eisenhower does not seem to be quite in step with Mr Dulles, which is strange in a military man."

"Mr Dulles has courteously said that the American position in regard to trade with China was correctly outlined by the President last week, but all the same, the President was decidedly half-hearted about the extra or differential restrictions on China."

"Whether we should eliminate this differential," the President said, "frankly, I don't see as much advantage in maintaining as some people do, although I have never advocated its complete elimination." — Reuters.

CLIMBER RETURNING TO UK

Katmandu, June 13.

Dr Charles Evans, the Liverpool surgeon whose two-man expedition was the earliest ever to climb a major Himalayan peak, left Katmandu today for Britain.

With one other climber, Mr Dennis Davis, and four Sherpas, Dr Evans scaled 24,000-foot Annapurna. Four but was beaten back by bad weather 1,500 feet below the summit of 29,041-foot Annapurna Two.

Dr Evans' exploit has opened up the Himalayas to small mountaineering parties such as his for the first time. He thinks Annapurna Two is climbable by a two-man party given good weather. — Reuters.

MAYFLOWER II BUMPS HER WAY INTO PLYMOUTH

Plymouth, Mass. June 13. A band of latter-day Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock today after a collision with a Coast Guard tow boat injured one of Mayflower II's crew and marred the end of the 64-day trans-Atlantic crossing.

The 62-foot reproduction of the 17th-century Pilgrim ship was under full sail when the Coast Guard boat, coming alongside to put aboard a low line at the entrance to Plymouth Harbour, swerved in front of her. The tug's mast and radar gear became entangled in the Mayflower's sail.

In the scramble to free the two vessels Joseph Lacey, 25, of Kingsdown Parade, Bristol, England, was crushed between the two craft. He was sent to hospital with a sprained back and injured ribs.

WORLD TAKING MEASURES TO COMBAT FLU

Paris, June 13.

Authorities in many parts of the world were tonight working on measures to check the influenza epidemic which has been raging through Asia for the past month, killing hundreds and putting millions on the sick list.

Special precautions have already been taken at the Vatican City and Mecca, visited by millions of pilgrims at this time of the year.

At ports and airports in Asia, Europe and the United States, travellers were being examined with the prospect of being put in quarantine if they showed signs of "Asian flu". These include a high temperature, stiffness and pains in the back and chest.

A Pakistani sailor was given an extensive medical examination at Orly airport yesterday and only allowed to proceed to London after the French authorities were satisfied that he was not carrying a contagious disease.

QUARANTINE

The French liner "Vietnam" in Durban, and the British troopship "Empire Fovey" at the Cape, have both been put in quarantine because of suspected cases aboard.

The Nationalist Chinese authorities announced today that the influenza death-toll had risen to 101, while a million and a half persons were stricken with the disease.

In Japan, 400,000 cases have been reported since the epidemic started there in early April.

After swooping through the Philippines, Indonesia, Malaya and Burma, the outbreak has now reached India, where some 50 persons have already died in Bombay and Calcutta.

Nearly 35,000 persons have been affected by the disease in New Delhi. The disease has taken the highest toll in the thickly populated old quarters of the town, leaving the modern residential areas relatively untouched. — France-Press.

She had another bump from a Coast Guard vessel getting under way from Providence this morning. There was no injury or damage.

The crowd of tourists waiting here for the 130-ton vessel to complete her history-repeating voyage were unaware of the accidents and their welcome was untroubled.

Captain Alan Williams, skipper of Mayflower, said that during the crossing the ship did not have a single case of sickness or accident.

He said: "By the grace of God, it's the best ship I ever sailed." But he admitted that at the start of the 5,400-mile trip "I was scared because I didn't know whether the ship would be able to stand gale force winds." — United Press.

RUSSIANS BEAMING WITH GOODWILL AT MOSCOW RECEPTION

By VINCENT BUIST

Moscow, June 13.

In a burst of cordiality not seen since before the Hungarian rising last October, five Soviet leaders tonight sipped whisky and chatted with Western diplomats at a birthday reception for Queen Elizabeth in the British Embassy.

Marshal Nikolai Bulganin, Soviet Prime Minister, and Mr Nikita Khrushchev, Soviet Communist Party Chief, are still away on their visit to Helsinki, but four vice-premiers and a former foreign minister were among the Soviet guests at the party given by Sir Patrick Reilly, British Ambassador.

They included: Mr Anastas Mikoyan, Mr Georgi Malenkov, Mr Mikhail Pervukhin and Mr Vyacheslav Molotov, and the former Foreign Minister, Mr Dmitri Shepilov, who now holds an important party post.

Mr Mikoyan drank repeated toasts to British-Soviet good relations.

ANXIOUS

When asked whether these relations, which were so bad six months ago, were recovering, he replied: "We are always anxious to maintain good relations with Britain and any other state but this of course is a two-sided affair."

Mr Mikoyan said that the Soviet Union was always anxious to do its bit in restoring to the full the friendly ties between London and Moscow.

Questioned about his attitude to the proposal by Mr John Foster Dulles, US Secretary of State, that there should be regular television and radio interview exchanges, Mr Mikoyan said he personally was in favour of such exchanges.

Asked whether a new tone of harshness had crept into the Soviet press recently towards the United States, he waved his hand and replied: "You are quite mistaken."

POLITE PEOPLE

He said the Soviet Union would reply soon to the latest German note on Moscow talks on trade and other subjects.

Turning to a West German reporter he added: "Don't think we don't recognise that you are in a hurry, but we are a polite people and we shall reply. You have time but we also have time."

Recalling that Mr Khrushchev, in his recent American television appearance, had spoken about easing restrictions on diplomatic travel, Mr Mikoyan said the Soviet Union was prepared to discuss this problem and obtain a reasonable agreement. ## Locomotive Goes Into Retirement

Jersey City, June 13.

America's first diesel-electric locomotive went into retirement today after 32 years of service.

The 300-horsepower engine chugged around Jersey Central Railroad freight yards here and then made its last run to Elizabethport and back before being shipped to the Baltimore & Ohio Museum in Baltimore.

Railroad officials, newsmen and photographers went along for old "No. 1000's" last trip. The little locomotive wrote railroad history in October, 1925, when it was introduced as the successor to steam engines. — United Press.

ROCK 'N' ROLL BLARES OUT IN SOCHI

—and the joint nearly collapses

A SUN HAT
NEWSPAPER

A RUSSIAN beach is rather a serious place. No noise, no deckchairs, no loud music, no bottles of pop. And bathing dress is straightforward with no nonsense about fashion or fancy sun hats. The girl in this group—as you can see—has made herself a hat of newspaper before settling down to a quiet game of cards with her friends.

THE beach at Sochi is narrow and pebbly and far from crowded. This afternoon in May—hot in the sun but cold in the sea—with the Russians laid out, plump and white as young seals, conditions were bordering on the idyllic. "Who are they?" I asked Nina, my official guide. For they showed all the signs of being a Nearly Smart Young Set. Lurid satin bras teamed with black trunks were almost a uniform and—more surprisingly—almost a Bikini.

The ordeal

"They are staying at the rest homes and sanatoria. Some of them are actors and actresses," she said.

Patient as fakers on beds of nails, they were stretched out on the pebbles—turning their butterskins brown. The sea was more or less ignored.

I thought of my black one-piece bathing suit among all those pale plump midriffs and let myself off the ordeal of joining them. Being stared at in slacks is one thing. But being stared at in a bathing suit...

Anyway, there were the pebbles, Sochi, which is so filled with costly Corinthian columns it is like a herd of white elephants, could have done with trading a couple of dozen of them for a swimming pool.

Depressing

"Come on, let's go shopping," I said to Nina—bored with the pebbles. But there was nothing to shop for I quickly found—except a white sheepskin hat with a sheepskin trimming (35 roubles).

The ugliness and costliness of Russian clothing is the most depressing aspect of the country.

The average wage is 200 roubles a week but a dress of cheerless chiffon with weary roses on it and no style at all was 450 roubles! Deadbeat dresses at Dior prices, I thought to myself.

Men's shoes of best quality— which is rather like our worst— 400 roubles. A platinum watch, a dizzy 5,425 roubles. Eggs were five roubles for ten. A man's shirt, 174 roubles.

"We must find a record-player for the rock 'n' roll records I've brought with me," I said to Nina.

Black market

In a sort of general store, alongside such appealing seaside souvenirs as a crudely carved marble owl for 105 roubles, we found a record-player.

I handed Mr Bill Haley to his first Sochi audience.

"Rock This Joint" whammed out, and the joint nearly collapsed.

Jazz is fairly well known in Russia as there is a busy black market in discs made from tape recordings of overseas radio programmes. But this!

In fact the astonishment of the people in the shop could be a little excused as, the needle started jumping out of the groove and a more extraordinary din than even Mr Haley can produce was the result. Finally it was me that begged to have it taken off.

Nina, calm and gentle as usual, said, soothingly: "Well, at least, I've got some idea of what it sounds like now." And off we went, leaving the joint well and truly rocked.

We stayed overnight at Odessa and went next day to Kiev.

Here I inadvertently disgraced myself three times. First, by taking a picture of a beggar—a nice, bearded old boy with one leg whom I snapped taking a five-rouble note from an American tourist.

So charming

"There are no beggars in Russia," I was told categorically, when an angry crowd had borne me back to the hotel. It was no use arguing. I had, in fact, seen several beggars in Russia and been stopped by them.

Next I insisted on going into a delightful but very old market where the old women sell the produce they have patiently won from the little personal plots of land they are allowed to own on the immense acres of the collective farms. They were charming old girls, simple and full of dignity.

But for some reason the rather priggish younger Russians are desperately ashamed of them. And when I bought some vivid little wooden toys that were the only bright and ingenious things I had seen in all my stay I was told I ought to buy "something more typical of our culture."

The third incident was my "arrest." I wandered off on my own and was taking a very intriguing shot of a new block of flats with some best-up little shacks next to it. I was seized by a very tall Russian workman who tried to take my camera.

Much nicer

"Americans!" he roared at me furiously. I shook my head. "Deutsch?" he roared again even more furiously, for Kiev has not forgotten the Nazi occupation.

"English," I said. "Ah, English. Good," he said, getting immediately much nicer.

Nevertheless, I was escorted by him and a bodyguard that increased to seven as we went along through a shanty town. Amused by the size of my squad, I started to drill them: "Left, right, left, right." At first this was not thought in the least funny, but gradually they began to smile.

We arrived at the police station all roaring with laughter and after a half-hour's hanging around I was rescued by a very stuffy young woman from Intourist who escorted me all the way back to the hotel.

Refused

That evening I dined with a Russian-born American who had travelled all the way to Kiev to visit his mother's grave outside the town, only to be refused permission to go there. He had grown rich in America but he was deeply attached to Russia. There were so many childhood places he wanted to visit but he was not allowed to move out of Kiev.

As we walked down the main street we gathered a small crowd round us. As he could speak Russian I was able to get closer to people through him than ever before. But there was one young Russian I didn't need a translator for. He had been brought back by his family after seven years in Canada. His yearning and sense of being cut off from everything he knew and liked was pathetic.

Last night

As a meagre compensation I gave him the rock 'n' roll records.

This was my last night in Russia. Next day we flew to Moscow to pick up the airplane to Prague.

As Nina and I said goodbye (and I was truly sad to say good-bye to her) there was so much I wanted to say. I had seen so much I hated but I regretted in many ways being such a turbulent tourist. I had seen so much that was lovable and wonderful in Russia too—and this was nearly always when I was doing what they didn't want me to do. I had made human contacts and felt human warmth, in spite of the tourist barrier.

My advice

And I was glad that I would probably remember those long after my dislike of the other side of Russia had died away. And for these things I would tell anyone who asks me: "Go to Russia."

I'm an egrazaphobist says Tallulah

by NANCY SPAIN

WHAT makes Tallulah Bankhead tick? I went along to the Ritz to find out.

How does it feel to come back to London, facing the town behind a pair of dark glasses? How is it done? Well, it's easy....

You hide behind a big word. You say: "I'm an egrazaphobist, that's me," and let The Legend do its work.

Miss Bankhead spelled out the word for me and I went home and looked it up in the Oxford Dictionary. I failed to find it. But Miss Bankhead says it means "A morbid terror of hard work."

That may be. Now, what's Miss Bankhead like? Well, for a start she can't sit still. She paces up and down like a race-horse or an elderly child of three.

She flings back her beige locks, she asks you to look at her eyelashes to see that they're still real. She wears a brown twin set and pearls (and for all I care sensible shoes) as though they were a Balmian creation.

And, of course, even although she is an actress, Michael Aiken's "Green Hat" she is about to be the smartest woman in town.

"You may call me Tallulah," said she. "And I do not lightly give permission for that, except, of course, to gallery girls and boys."

But to me she will always be Miss Bankhead. Everything this woman says and does is a contradiction, every time she opens her mouth she takes back the word she first thought of.

I'm sure she is very lovable, just like a dog that bites you is lovable.

OLD PALS

"AND I would like you to know that everything everybody says about me in the newspapers is a lot of misquotations," she said.

"If you really want to help me you should say I want John and Mary and Fern to get in touch with me. Never mind John and Mary who. They'll know."

So the old pals act still works, even for a legend, I thought.

She then explained that the reason why she was walking about so much ("Although I always walk about a lot") was because she wanted us to admire her wonderful figure.

"I'm nothing but bones now," she said, "nothing but bones. The pep-up pills calm me down and the calm-down pills pep me up."

She took a deep and apparently satisfying swig from a tall jug full of what looked like intoxicating liquor.

"What's that?" I asked. "Cold tea," she said.

I simply couldn't believe in this vitality, kept going on cold tea. "Nervous" vitality I should call it, except that she was obviously scared of nothing.

"Don't you eat anything, ever?"

"Oh yes, I had breakfast on the plane. I had bacon and eggs and grape fruit, and toast and butter and marmalade. But I won't eat lunch now. YOU have lunch."

"No," I said.

Being Miss Bankhead, I thought, must be like being a long-playing gramophone record, eternally playing on a machine bulging for perpetual motion. I would not care to be Miss Bankhead at all.

"How do you keep going?" I asked. "What is the secret?"

She didn't know.

HER WIT

"I've had shingles, hepatitis, smallpox, mumps, measles (oh, I nearly died with measles), triple pneumonia, gastric ulcers, neuritis and I've broken my hand and my ribs. Why, I've a steel pin in my hand right now. No, I feel nothing except when I get some melatonin on it. Then it feels like chilblains. That's why I never shake hands now. In-deed, I can't bear to be touched."

PETER LOADER MAKES A STRONG BID TO REGAIN HIS TEST PLACE

WIPING OFF THE ARREARS

Colin Cowdrey sweeps one from Ramadhin and calls for a run, but Peter May says "No!". This was during the partnership in the second innings of the first Test at Edgbaston when the two wiped off the first innings arrears against the West Indies and put England in a respectable position. They stayed together for a record fourth wicket Test partnership of 411. — Central Press Photo.

Takes Five West Indian Wickets For 57

London, June 13.

Peter Loader, the Surrey and England fast bowler, made a strong bid to regain his Test place by taking five West Indies wickets for 57 at the Oval here today when the tourists were shot out for 220.

Surrey, 10 behind on first innings, had scored 135 for three wickets at the close, giving them a lead of 125 with a day left for play.

A fourth wicket partnership of 130 by Everton Weekes (84) and Garfield Sobers (71) saved the West Indies batting from complete failure. The stand lasted just over two hours and came opportunely when the tourists were 50 for three.

After lunch came a sudden collapse with seven wickets falling for 36 runs in 65 minutes.

FOUR FOR FIVE

Loader, with the new ball, was the champion of this dramatic reverse, taking three wickets in his last four balls and having figures of 5-1-5-4 in his final spell.

A large crowd watched the play in bright sunshine with a light easterly breeze keeping the players cool and with 11 wickets falling for 200 runs.

During the day spectators had plenty to applaud.

The West Indies collapse began when Jim Laker dismissed the left-handed Sobers and Weekes in his first two overs after lunch.

Sobers hit 11 fours in his 71, top score of the over. Wickets made 64, including five boundaries.

The pair, who came together after the dismissal of the over, night batsman, Nyrwan Aggarwal, at the end of the first over, put on 130 in just over two hours in the glorious sunshine.

Loader returned the best bowling figures with five wickets for 57. Laker took four for 48.

Surrey's second innings began brightly with Tom Clarke driving and cutting well for his 36, but after tea they lost three quick wickets to some accurate spin bowling by Sobers and Smith.

Mickey Stewart, who toured the West Indies with the Duke of Norfolk's XI earlier in the year, required 50 in 150 minutes with five fours and went on to be 50 not out at the close with David Fletcher (21 not out) as his partner.

The pair looked comfortable against a West Indies attack which had lost much of its sting through the absence of Sonny Ramadhin with a slight groin strain.

His injury is not considered serious as he was able to bat but he did not take the field either before or after tea.

Another Former Champion Eliminated In Colony Bowls Championship

By "TOUCHER"

Another former champion came to grief as the Colony Open Singles Lawn Bowls Championships continued yesterday.

At the Kowloon Bowling Green Club the 1950 winner, C. C. Pereira of Recreo, became the third former champion to be eliminated in the Championships so far, when he surprisingly lost to G. F. Santos of Craigengar Cricket Club by 6-22.

Santos, who plays in Craigengar power's Second Division League team and was a member of the 1955 Colony Champion rink, was expected after his performance last year, when he lost to the same opponent by only three shots, to put up some resistance but upset all predictions by not only taking the decision but taking it by the overwhelming margin of 22-6.

Playing consistent and accurate bowls, Santos led all the way after the second head when he was held to 2-2. A four on the third head put him into a 6-2 lead from which he never looked back.

In contrast Pereira was far from his best, and was unable to master the green throughout the 15 heads in which he scored on only three heads.

Boxing Matches At Baseball Games

Chicago, June 13.

The Chicago White Sox and New York Yankees, fighting for first place in the American League, fought each other with bare fists at Comiskey Park today and five players were thrown out of the game.

Umpires ordered pitcher Whitey Ford, second baseman Billy Martin and outfielder Enos Slaughter of the Yankees off the field. First baseman Walt Dropo and outfielder Larry Doby of the White Sox were also told to leave the game.

The Braves held up the rubber game of the Sox-Yankees three-game series for 20 minutes, examining onto the field, started when Logan, Milwaukee shortstop, was struck on the back by one of Drysdale's pitches.

Bill Bruton had just hit his second consecutive homer to put the Braves in front 4-0.

Logan and Drysdale exchanging words when Logan reached first base and the two suddenly went for each other. Drysdale swung and missed with a wild right hand and Logan appeared to get in several good punches.

NON-BONUS PLAYER

The Philadelphia Phillies announced the signing of catcher Dick Leber, 21, Princeton, New Jersey, who just graduated from Muhlenberg College.

Leber, signed as a non-bonus player, will report on Saturday to Salt Lake City in the Pioneer League. The six-foot four-inch, 225-pounder bats and throws right-handed.

Freddie Truman In Form Against Notts

London, June 13.

While Surrey's fast bowler Peter Loader was taking five West Indies wickets at the Oval, Freddie Truman of Yorkshire showed he is unlikely to lose his place in England's opening attack.

Peter Loader grabbed five Nottinghamshire second innings wickets for 30 runs in 15.3 overs at Bradford and helped Yorkshire to win by eight wickets. Yorkshire also took two bonus points.

Nottinghamshire were all out for 135, leaving Yorkshire to get 97 runs for victory, which the northern county accomplished after claiming the extra half hour.

At Swansea, Glamorgan also claimed extra time to beat Somerset in two days. A great spell of medium-paced bowling by Don Shepherd, who took six wickets for 20 runs, enabled Glamorgan to shoot out Somerset for 92 in their first innings.

VICTORY GALLOP

Despite a third wicket stand of 40 between Australia's Bill Alley and Colin McCool, Somerset could not check Glamorgan's victory gallop and they were out a second time for 221. Shepherd taking four for 71. Glamorgan, left to make 52, won by nine wickets.

One of the closest fights for bonus points since the system was introduced this season occurred at Hove.

Northamptonshire were deprived of two points by 0.05 of a run per over in the match against Sussex, whose captain, Robin Marlar, going in number 11, topped the scales by hitting 20 in 12 minutes.

At the Oval, Surrey 210 and 135 for three (Shepherd 59 not out). West Indies 220 (Weekes 64, Sobers 71, Loader five for 57).

At Hove, Northamptonshire 285 for nine declared and 64 for two. Sussex 273 (Lenham 83, Foreman 35).

At Cambridge, Cambridge University 210 and 158 for seven. Derbyshire 223 (Carr 88, Smith six for 66).

At Brentford, Lancashire 177 and 140 for eight. Essex 211.

At Leicester, Leicestershire 294 and 94 for four. Kent 242 (Cowdrey 73, Dixon 52).

At Birmingham, Gloucestershire 270 and 89 for two. Warwickshire 373 (Gardner 183, Smith 59, Cook five for 58).

At Worcester, Worcestershire 159 and 259 (Broadbent 111). Royal Air Force 208 (Alderson 80).

At Oxford, Oxford University 450 for seven declared. Army 123 (Smith 54) and 107 for seven.—Reuter.

Australia's Top Swimmers Take 'Pep Pills'?

Melbourne, June 13.

The Amateur Swimming Association of Victoria decided today to ask the Amateur Swimming Union of Australia to investigate allegations that stars have been taking stimulants.

The allegation was made by a former Olympic swimmer, Judy Joy Davies, in a newspaper article in which she said some of Australia's top swimmers had taken "pep pills" before the championships.

Bill Uren, President of the Victorian Swimming Association, said he was perturbed by the charges and felt there should be a thorough investigation.—United Press.

Bill Bishop says there's no point in getting excited about a role in order to turn out an inspired bit of acting. As far as he's concerned an actor who gets himself keyed up isn't going to do any better than one who's calm.

Bishop said that his own experience, and that of others, has led him to believe that being keyed up and tense is bad for one's acting. The ups and downs of an actor's life and his "between pictures" problems probably serve only to heighten the myth about the advantages of being keyed up.

"Sometimes he works like a dog, and sometimes he's doing nothing," Bishop said.

BBC TELEVISION CENTRE TAKES SHAPE

THIS is a recent photograph showing progress on the main block of the British Broadcasting Corporation's Television Centre which is in course of construction on a 13-acre site in West London and is designed ultimately to concentrate the whole of the BBC Television Service under one roof.

The Scenery Block, from the roof of which this general view was photographed, is already in use and houses some 200 offices, scenery and property stores, workrooms, carpenters' shops and the large painting galleries of the Design Department. When completed the Main Block will be in the form of a multi-story 'ring' structure of nine floors, enclosing a court of some 150 feet in diameter.

Control Room

In the 'ring' there will be dressing rooms, wardrobe space and engineering areas on the lower floors, with offices above. Radiating from it will be television production studios, telecine and telecording areas and a central control room. The outer periphery of the studios will be enclosed by a continuous runway along which scenery and properties can be conveyed to the studios from the Scenery Block. The area to be enclosed by the 'ring' building and buildings radiating from it is 3½ acres—an area nearly twice that covered by St Paul's Cathedral. Work on this stage of the project is expected to be completed by mid-1960.—BBC Photo.

TURNCOAT'S WIFE ARRIVES

Tanya Dzarasova, 24-year-old White Russian, wife of a former American soldier turncoat, Samuel I. Hawkins, crossed the border into British Territories at Lowu at 1 p.m. today.

Her first comment was: "I am anxious to go back to my husband." She added that she did not know when she was leaving for the United States. Mrs. Hawkins boarded the 2.22 p.m. train for town. She said she was delayed by Chinese immigration officials for a short time, before crossing the border. The couple married in Peking in a Chinese civil ceremony while Hawkins was in China, after deciding to remain there following his release from a POW camp in Korea. Hawkins returned to the United States through Hongkong on February 27, six years after the ending of hostilities.

Cyclist Hurt

A private car collided with a cyclist in Castle Peak Road, near Hing Wah Street, at about 8.45 p.m. yesterday. The cyclist, Leung Ng, aged 45, residing at 425, Chatham Road, ground floor, sustained injuries and was admitted to Kowloon Hospital for treatment.

It was also notified that recognition, provisionally and pending instructions from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, has been given to Mr. Angel Vega Mendez, as Consul-General for the Republic of Panama at Hongkong with effect from June 7, 1957.

FAREWELL TO THE U.S.A.F. BAND

The U.S.A.F. Band gave the last of its four concerts for charity in the Football Club Stadium last night, to a good-sized audience.

Since the first concert, some improvements had been made in the amplification system, and on the whole the balance was fair and there were only a few occasions on which the bass was overpowered.

For the singing and speaking voices, there was almost no distortion, except when the tenor soloist was exercising his utmost powers, and only then did his voice overbalance the band slightly.

FAMOUS SIAMESE TWIN IS DEAD

One of the famous Siamese Twins, the Lau Brothers, who gained world fame some 60 years ago, died in the Hip Wo Hospital in Peking (the well-known Peking Union Medical College) sometime in April this year.

The vernacular journal, the Ta Kung Pao, carried a pictorial news item this morning saying that one of the twins, Lau Shing-tai, was showing signs of failing health in April and the twins were admitted to the hospital.

An operation was performed on April 26 and the twins were separated, the soft bones joining them in the chest region was severed. Lau Shing-tai died a few hours after the operation. The other twin brother, Lau Shing-kai, survived the operation.

The twins were born 89 years ago. They became world famous at the age of seven when they were spotted by a European who offered himself as their manager and exhibited them in a travelling circus. Later the twins were exhibited in major cities in China until the Communists resettled them.

WEIGHTY

The programme was probably the most weighty of the four, and contained some solid fare, such as Wagner's "Rienzi" Overture, which opened the concert. Ravel's "Bolero" and "A Festival at Baghdad" from Scheherazade by Rimsky-Korsakov.

Some of the items were already known to many last year, and there was an interesting new Japanese work, "Dance of Japanese Youth" by Tono, an effective mixture of Japanese idiom and Western harmonisation. There were also two works by members of the band.

This band has a fine and full tone, its woodwind is mellow and its brass not too blaring. The cellos and basses are the envy of our local combinations. It is interesting to note what has been made of the orchestration in works which were originally scored for the upper strings; for instance Ravel's "Bolero" (which was given in a much shortened version) and the "Festival at Baghdad".

Near the end of the latter work, the woodwind took over the upward-rushing passages which Rimsky-Korsakov gave to the violins, and also the solo violin part which is supposed to represent the narrative voice of Scheherazade herself.

DISCIPLINE

The band has almost perfect discipline, and gives the impression that it could manage quite happily by itself without direction, but this of course is an illusion caused by the excellent control and ability to create responsiveness of the conductor, Colonel George S. Howard, whose strong up-beat is masterful without being flashy.

Mr. Bellamy, the conductor of the St. John Ambulance Brigade Band, took over for the Sousa March "Semper Paratus" a courteous gesture on the part of Col. Howard which was much appreciated.

There was some excellent solo singing by Sergeant Kerns, baritone, and Sergeant Dupree, tenor; both singers have pleasing and powerful natural voices, effortless production and really good enunciation. They won the hearts of the audience, especially with their encores.

There was some amazing solo playing on the accordion by Sgt. Joseph Sopranal and on the trumpet by Sgt. D. A. Dale.

IMPRESSIVE

The Singing Sergeants, an impressive team conducted by Captain Landers, gave two well-assorted groups, containing both unaccompanied songs, and items in which instrumentalists and sometimes the whole band joined in.

These have been enjoyable occasions and in a good cause, and it was fortunate that the weather decided to clear up at last. It will probably be some time before the ideal conditions are discovered for outdoor music in Hongkong, but it is always worth while experimenting in these matters. The Hollywood Bowl is far away, but we should keep on trying.
